What you should know upfront

It is important that you read the disclaimer at the end of this fact sheet. Before making any decisions, please read the PSSap Product Disclosure Statement and consider seeking advice from a licensed professional such as a financial planner, accountant or solicitor.

What is the super co-contribution?

The Government superannuation co-contribution is designed to assist eligible individuals who earn less than $60,342 a year and make personal (after-tax) contributions to save for their retirement.

Am I eligible for the super co-contribution?

You may be eligible for the super co-contribution in a year of income if:

- > you are an Australian resident or New Zealand resident working in Australia
- > your 'total income' (assessable income plus reportable fringe benefits) is less than $60,342 (this may be different to your taxable income)
- > 10% or more of your total income is from eligible employment
- > you do not hold an eligible temporary resident visa at any time during the year
- > you lodge an income tax return for the year of income and
- > you are less than 71 years old at the end of the year of income.

What does 'total income' mean?

Your 'total income' is your assessable income plus your reportable fringe benefits.

Assessable income includes (but is not limited to):

- > salary or wages, as well as any bonuses or overtime pay received
- > any dividends, income and Fund earnings gained on investments (including bank interest and gross rent from property)
- > net capital gains and Superannuation Lump Payments
- > partner's share of the net income of the partnership
- > distribution from a Trust.

Reportable fringe benefits are non-cash benefits provided with employment, for example, a car or accommodation.

Do I need to apply for the super co-contribution?

No, you do not need to apply for the super co-contribution or fill in any forms. If you are eligible, all you need to do is make personal contributions (after tax) to a super fund (such as the PSSap) and lodge an income tax return.

The Australian Tax Office will use the information on your income tax return and contribution information we provide them to work out whether you are eligible. If you are, then they will automatically calculate the super co-contribution amount and deposit it into your superannuation account.

How can I make a personal after-tax contribution?

There are several options available to you if you want to make a personal after-tax contribution to the PSSap:

1. You can make a payment using BPAY. Go to www.pssap.gov.au then to 'Your account'. Login using your access number and click on 'Contributions' and follow the prompts to generate your BPAY and Customer Reference Number.

If you don't have an access number call us on 1300 725 171 and we can give you one over the phone.

2. You can arrange for your employer to deduct super contributions from your salary, simply contact your payroll department.

3. You are also able to make a personal contribution via cheque or money order.

Send it to:

PSSap, PO Box 22, Belconnen ACT 2616

All of the above payments can be regular or one-off contributions to your PSSap super account.

When will my super co-contribution be paid?

Your super co-contribution is payable after:

- > you have lodged your income tax return
- > your superannuation fund has lodged a member contributions statement (MCS) for you and
- > the Australian Tax Office has received any additional information required.

The PSSap will usually provide your contribution information by 31 October, after the end of financial year. Once the Australian Tax Office has received all the necessary information, your super co-contribution will usually be paid to your superannuation account within 60 days.

You must be a contributing member to have the super co-contribution paid into the PSSap.

How will I know that I have received the super co-contribution?

The Australian Tax Office will send you a letter with details about your super co-contribution amount after it has been paid to your superannuation account. The super co-contribution will usually be paid to the super fund to which you make personal contributions.

How will the super co-contribution be taxed?

The super co-contribution will be treated as a non-concessional contribution for taxation purposes, which means it will not be subject to any tax when paid into your account.

How much will I receive?

The Government will contribute up to $1.50 for every $1 of personal contributions (after tax) made to a person's nominated super fund, up to $1,500. The full $1,500 will be available to anyone earning a total income of up to $30,342.

If you earn more than $30,342, 5 cents will be deducted from the maximum super co-contribution for every dollar earned over $30,342.

Example

If you earn a total income of $44,342:

- Find out by how much your total income exceeds $30,342.
 $$44,342 - $30,342 = $14,000$
- Find out how much the Super Co-contribution will be reduced.
 $$14,000 \times $0.05 = $700$
- Your Super Co-contribution is therefore:
 $$1,500 - $700 = $800$

	If your personal superannuation contribution (after tax) is:
	$1,000	$800	$500	$200
And your income is:	Your Super Co-contribution will be:
$30,342 or less	$1,500	$1,200	$750	$300
